Re: LB 515, to change provisions relating to the student discipline act

Education is a key indicator of future opportunity for children, and we should make every effort to ensure that our education system is setting students up for success. When disciplinary processes are structured in clear and fair ways, students at risk of drop out are better supported to succeed in their education. Voices for Children in Nebraska supports LB 515, because it provides procedural protections that will keep students on track to educational success, rather than pushing them out to the streets and court system.

We know that schools may struggle with inadequate resources, but we must find ways to address misbehavior while allowing students to pursue their education. Even students who misbehave deserve a meaningful opportunity to continue their education, and we all benefit when they do so. Procedures and policies that rely too heavily on exclusion from school result in lower educational attainment not only for suspended or expelled students,¹ but for the student body as a whole. Studies have shown that schools with a higher reliance on exclusion as a form of discipline actually score lower on academic achievement tests among the total student body, even when controlling for socioeconomic and demographic factors.² Modifying our student discipline act to provide heightened procedural and substantive educational protections for students who might otherwise be at risk of drop out will benefit our student populations as a whole.

In the 2016-2017 school year, there were 625 students in public and nonpublic schools expelled (0.2% of our total student population). There were 36,158 students suspended (11%).³ Moreover, students who miss more than twenty days of school, including for out of school suspensions or expulsions, can be referred to county attorneys for prosecution. In fact, in 2017, there were twice as many youth supervised on juvenile probation for "status offenses" like truancy than for felonies. In FY 2016-2017, 11% of all youth placed on probation were for excessive absences from school.⁴ This does not include any students who had a higher-level charge beyond absenteeism.

At an average monthly cost of $640.20 per youth on probation, with an average length of time on probation of 15.3 months for status offenses,⁵ the estimated average cost of those 512 students to our state general fund would be $5,015,070.72. Resorting to the justice system is a costly and heavy-handed approach to student discipline. Adding clarifications and procedural protections to our student disciplinary process, that will keep at-risk students connected to their school and engaged in their education whenever possible, will have a direct impact on those numbers.

With that, I'd like to thank Senator Vargas for bringing LB 515, and this committee for your time, attention, and commitment to improving our education system for all. I'd be happy to answer any questions.
