RE: Support for LB 35, change provisions relating to child care assistance.

Nebraska is full of hard-working caretakers who are determined to better the lives of the children they look after. One of the obstacles that stands in the way of accepting and keeping employment is finding quality and affordable child care. Quality early childhood programs give children the best chance for success later in life. Voices for Children in Nebraska supports LB 35 which extends the current eligibility level of child care subsidies until 2026, because it will allow hardworking families to continue to keep their children safely in care as our country faces a potential recession.

The chaotic reality of the pandemic brought many issues regarding childcare to the forefront. Child care keeps children safe while parents are working or going to school, but it is now one of the biggest expenses for any household. The cost of child care can sometimes surpass the cost of a college education. In Nebraska, infant care for one child takes up over 19% of a median families income at an average of $11,420 and is more expensive than in-state college tuition by over $4,000¹. In fact, Nebraska ranks 19th out of the 50 states for most expensive infant care.² We know how vital high-quality child care³ is for families and Nebraska has the opportunity to continue access for low-income families to work their way towards economic stability.

Child care is a costly investment Nebraska families need to make in order to provide for other essential expenses and build their way into security. The child care subsidy, as it currently stands with eligibility for families at 185% of the federal poverty level, has been helping families across the state be able to afford care they might not otherwise be able to. The loss of eligibility would be devastating to these families, who have come to rely on that access to child care. If this eligibility is allowed to sunset, families would find themselves having to make very difficult decisions: do they continue working or going to school? If so, what happens to their child? LB 35 would ensure that parents and caregivers would not be faced with these decisions this fall, but could instead make choices based on what makes the most sense for their family's economic security, health and wellbeing.

I would like to thank Senator DeBoer for bringing this important issue forward, and I would like to thank the members of the Committee for your time, attention, and commitment to every child in Nebraska.
